Common nouns

Common nouns are generic nouns. They name people, places, things or ideas that are not specific and not unique.

Examples of common nouns include:

- air, cat, happiness, music, newspaper.
- Would you like a cookie?
- There are a lot of important documents in the archives.

We don't usually write them with a capital letter, unless they come at the beginning of a sentence:

- I love music. (NOT: ~~I love Music.~~)
- Happiness is the most important thing.*

Proper nouns

Proper nouns are names for unique people, places or things and we always write them with a capital letter:

- My sister's name is Sarah.
- The best day of the week is Friday.

Examples of proper nouns include:

- Australia, Monday, Rome, Russian, Sarah.

Proper nouns include:

a) The names of people, places or institutions:

- Sarah, Mr Stevens, the United States, Beijing, Cambridge University, the Hilton Hotel.

b) The names of the days of the week, months of the year and public holidays:

- Saturday, Thursday, June, September, Christmas, Thanksgiving.

(But not seasons: 'summer' not '~~Summer~~'.)

c) The names of nationalities and languages:

- Mexican, Swiss, English, Spanish.

d) The names of newspapers, magazines and the titles of books and movies:

- The Guardian, Vogue, Alice in Wonderland, Moby Dick, Terminator, The Lord of the Rings.

Note: When the title has several words, we often write all the important words in capital letters.

- San Fransisco
- Three Men in a Boat

Take care with:

- I went for a walk in the park.
- I went for a walk in Central Park.
- I studied chemistry at the university.
- I studied chemistry at London University.

Note that proper nouns are generally used without articles.

- Agatha Christie wrote many books.
- Let's go to San Francisco.
- He never goes anywhere without Sarah.

However, there are several categories that are used with the definite article 'the'.
