A compound noun consists of two or more words that act as a singular noun.

via <http://lgzsoldos.blogspot.com/2016/03/endocentric-and-exocentric-compound-nouns.html>

All compound nouns contain at least one main word, which is usually the last in such combination and in most cases is a noun:

- table tennis, playground, school bag, haircut, dishwasher, toothpaste, swimming pool

The other word(s) in this combination may be an adjective, a preposition, or a verb. They modify the main word or add to its meaning:

- We need to go to the bus stop. (noun + noun)
- Take a look at the whiteboard. (adjective + noun)
- The historic city centre is reachable by underground. (preposition + noun)

Here's a great video from Shaw English to help you get started with compound nouns:

How to form compound nouns

Compound nouns can be formed in three different ways:

- two words melded together to make one word:

- Jennifer needs some time to fix her makeup.
- Michael likes playing football.
- I need a new toothbrush for my trip.

- separate words next to each other:

- To receive your parcel you should contact your local post office.
- Kids have been playing in the swimming pool all day long.
- Please put the plates on the kitchen table, I will wash them later.

- hyphenated words:

- This coat is not suitable for dry-cleaning.
- All visitors are invited to the hotel reception for check-in.
- There are two six-packs of beer in my fridge.

How to form plural forms of compound nouns

Plural forms of compound nouns are created by making the final noun plural:

- Babysitter → Good babysitters always have reference letters from their clients.
- Haircut → Some haircuts can make your face look thinner.
- Cycle race → Nick took part in many cycle races.

Note: In general we make the plural of a compound noun by adding -s to the 'base word' (the most 'significant' word):

- mother-in-law → mothers-in-law
- passer-by → passers-by

Some compound nouns have no obvious base word and you may need to consult a dictionary to find the plural:

- grown-up → grown-ups
- good-for-nothing → good-for-nothings
